ANALYSIS OF CONDO UNIT REPEAT SALES

Looking at the matched condo unit sales Ms Ross identified in comparison with the townwide cycle graph:

25 Highview Drive

- Sold 7/25/2012 $145,500 Median condo price 2012 was $175,500, more than the sale price
 - Sold 7/31/2015 $190,000 Median condo price 2015 was $206,000, more than the sale price
- The unit sale price increased 30.6% compared with 17.4% townwide. This sale appears to support that while the adventure park was minimally operational the Highview units' sole prices were increasing at a greater pace than townwide.*

2 Hilltop Drive

- Sold 4/25/2014 $167,000 Median condo price 2014 was $179,500, more than the sale price
- Sold 11/20/2015 $189,000 Median condo price 2015 was $206,000, more than the sale price

The unit sale price increased 13.2% compared with 14.2% townwide. The unit's price is lower than the median townwide price, suggesting the beginning of a trend for lower unit prices as the adventure park is operational for a longer time.

37 Highview Drive

- Sold 2/22/2013 $134,000 Median condo price 2013 was $167,500, more than the sale price
- Sold 3/29/2016 $183,000 Median condo price 2016 was $195,500, more than the sale price

The unit sale price increased 36.6% compared with 16.7% townwide. This was a unit that had been upgraded. Ms. Ross' adjusted 2016 sole price was $135.00/square foot in 2016 compared with $109.84 in 2013, a 22.9% increase in value compared with 16.7% townwide (a smaller upward price trajectory than seen earlier for 25 Highview Drive).

96 Highview Drive

- Sold 6/30/2014 $179,500 Median condo price 2014 was $179,500, same as sale price.
- Sold 8/15/2018 $239,000 Median condo price 2018 was $243,500, more than sale price.

According to Ms. Ross the unit was upgraded accounting for part of the increased price. But the unit sale price fell below the median for 2018 in spite of the upgrade.

These are only a small sample of a developing curve. The longer marketing time found in the neighborhood condominiums adds further support. Another price point that Ms. Ross omitted which should be added to the above, prior to 96 Highview Drive, is the following:

16 Highview Drive

- Sold 3/3/2006 for $260,000 Median condo price in 2006 was $245,000, less than the sale price
 - Sold 12/14/2017 for $226,000 Median condo price in 2017 was $226,000, same as the sale price.
- This unit sole price in 2006 was 6.1% higher than townwide, but in 2017 the unit sole price was the same as the townwide median price.*

Adventure Parks Are the New Amusement Parks

Zip lines, paddling circuits, flow tracks, and a ski-resort style business model are coming to a city near you

By: Devon O'Neil (/1740966/devon-oneil) Aug 17, 2016

Aerial adventure parks can serve as "gateways to the natural world." Photo: Elenathewise/iStock

In hindsight, John Hines concedes, the idea seems simple: build an aerial adventure park on a flat swath of forested land near a major city, and charge an entrance fee. "Anywhere there are lots of people and lots of trees, there's an opportunity," says Hines, co-owner of Outdoor Venture Group, a company founded in 2008 that owns nine parks in six states.

A decade ago, not a single aerial adventure park existed in the United States. They had flourished in Europe, where urban adventurers flocked by the tens of thousands to test themselves on the wood-and-rope challenge courses suspended among the treetops, 50 feet above the ground. Similar structures succeeded for decades in America as team-building venues for corporations and kids. But until Adirondack Extreme, in Lake George, New York, opened the first publicly available pay-to-play park in 2007,

Often parks will lease vacant land from nonprofit groups and enter into a revenue-sharing agreement. A park in Sandy Spring, Maryland, for example, is located on land owned by the Sandy Spring Friends School, which uses the money to provide financial aid to students. With 18 trails and more than 200 features, the park is one of the nation's largest and busiest. A season pass runs $780—$29 less than it costs for unlimited skiing or snowboarding at 12 world-class resorts on Vail Resorts' Epic Pass—and patrons wait in lines for hours.

Hines estimates the Sandy Spring park, the second one built by Outdoor Venture, sees 80,000 "climbers" in a season, many paying the $53 three-hour usage fee, and says the company's nine parks cater to 450,000 visitors in total. CrossFitters love them. So do summer camps. Last year, a 95-year-old woman completed one of the courses at Sandy Spring. It's a far cry from when parks weren't open to the public and were viewed strictly as a place where groups became more cohesive.

"When we started, we were the black sheep, because we weren't educators, team builders, or facilitators," Hines says. "We were in it for all the wrong reasons. Well, in the past seven years, the entire world has changed, and virtually everybody is now dependent on the revenue that can be generated from the non-team-building, pay-to-play stuff."

Despite the industry's growth, questions remain about how the market will evolve. There is no official regulatory agency overseeing the courses or their safety; instead, when a new course is constructed, local government and insurance agencies rely on inspectors accredited with the Association for Challenge Course Technology (ACCT) to deem the course safe and up to industry standards.

"Every state is different," Hines says. "Some states hold adventure parks to amusement park standards. Some states look at them and go, 'We don't know what you are; therefore, we're just going to watch.'"

"It's kind of a patchwork regulatory framework that does not exactly fit," says Shawn Tierney, president of AACT. "So what we try to do is be involved in the regulation of the industry so we can educate regulators but also have other stakeholders, like the operators, be involved, so that whatever regulation there is really makes sense. It's still in the process of evolving and will be for years."

knows what can happen, you put them in a semi-controlled environment where you still don't know what can happen." In other words, maybe parents should forgo contrived adventures and let their kids climb real mountains, even if it takes longer to get there.

Aoyogi makes a fair point, but convenience trumps style in this trend. The aerial adventure park market is "not even close" to saturation, Hines says. "I wouldn't be surprised if five years from now there were 1,500 parks in the U.S." Cummings predicts growing popularity will require them to adopt reservation systems.

"At a well-designed adventure park," Hines says, "there's always something to come back and do."

CORRECTION: A previous version of this article incorrectly stated that Catamount Ski Area, in New York's Berkshire Mountains, opened the first publicly available pay-to-play model in 2009.

LEASE AGREEMENT

LEASE AGREEMENT (this "Agreement") is made as of the 19th day of March, 2014, between Heritage Plantation of Sandwich, Inc., a Massachusetts non-profit corporation ("HM") and The Adventure Park at Heritage Museums and Gardens, LLC, a Massachusetts limited liability company ("AP") with an address of 223 High Meadow Road, Southport, Connecticut 06890. HM and AP agree as follows:

Section 1. Premises; Access; Parking.

(a) Lease; Park Area. HM hereby leases to AP and AP hereby leases from HM and AP agrees to operate an educational aerial adventure feature and related activities (the "Park") on that area of unimproved land located in Sandwich, Massachusetts more particularly described on Exhibit A attached hereto (the "Park Area").

(b) Reception and Parking; Access. The Park operations shall include a right of shared access with HM to the Park Area over other adjacent land owned by HM in the areas designated by HM. HM shall also afford OVG and its employees, guests and invitees the right to use the areas so designated on Exhibit A (the "Parking, Reception Area") for parking, sales, and administrative operations ("Parking and Administration"). AP shall have the right to construct a new reception area as part of the construction of the park in accordance with Section 7 of this Agreement if it chooses; provided, however, that all educational content included in such reception area shall be approved by HM in its sole and absolute discretion.

Section 2. Use of Premises; Operation of Park.

(a) Park Use; Generally. HM agrees that the Park Area may be used by AP and its employees, guests and invitees during the Agreement Term, solely for the purpose of constructing, operating and maintaining an aerial forest adventure park (the "Park") and related activities, and that the Parking Area may be used by AP and its employees, guests and invitees during the Agreement Term, for Parking, Sales and Administration. AP covenants to use the Park principally and primarily for educational, including family recreational and physical fitness purposes in keeping with the character, atmosphere and purpose of the Heritage Museum and its programming requirements. AP also covenants to use and operate the Park in accordance with the terms and provisions of the Operating Agreement of The Adventure Park at Heritage Museum, LLC of even date herewith ("Joint Venture Agreement"). HM will work diligently to assist AP in obtaining at AP's cost all applicable permits and approvals required for AP's use. AP shall have the right to terminate this Agreement without liability in the event that any governmental approval required for the construction or operation of the Park cannot be obtained following reasonable efforts.

(b) Layout. The Park will generally consist of the following:

An educational, aerial feature consisting of platforms and their connecting cables which are generally built a minimum of 10 feet from the ground. The plan will include approximately 8 courses with approximately 110

The failure of either party to enforce or insist on performance of any of the terms of this Agreement shall not be construed as a waiver of any other term or as a waiver of any future right to enforce or insist on the performance of the same term.

Section 19. Captions.

The captions and numbers appearing herein are inserted only as a matter of convenience and are not intended to define, limit, construe or describe the scope or intent of any Paragraph of this Agreement, nor in any way affect the substance of this Agreement.

Section 20. Notices.

Any notices required to be given hereunder shall be deemed duly given if mailed by registered or certified mail addressed to HM and AP at the addresses set forth above, or at such other address as either party may give notice of to the other in writing.

Section 21. Governing Law.

This Agreement shall be construed and interpreted in accordance with the laws of the State of Massachusetts.

Section 22. Brokerage.

AP and HM each represents that it has not had any dealings with any brokers or agents in connection with the negotiation of this Agreement.

Section 23. No Joint Venture.

This Agreement shall not be deemed or construed to create a partnership or joint venture between HM and AP.

Section 24. Signage; Approval of Marketing Materials.

AP shall not place any signage at the entrance of the Park or otherwise without HM's approval. Heritage and AP shall work jointly to obtain all permits and approvals necessary for the signage and shall cause the signage to comply with all applicable legal requirements.

Section 25. Restriction.

In recognition of the substantial expense and resources which will be necessary in connection with the construction and operation of the Park, HM agrees that it shall not grant the right to undertake any competitive activity relating to the Park to any other party during the Agreement Term. As used herein, "competitive activity" shall mean any adventure park, theme park, water park, amusement park, or similar activity.

Section 26. Subordination to Encumbrances.

Hi Marc,

We have the Heritage Museums & Gardens here in town where they are proposing a new "aerial adventure" which includes Zip Lines, rope walks, tree-type decks, etc. that lead you above the gardens below. I would be inclined to view this as some sort of amusement which may require state inspection as with any type of amusement ride/adventure. Apparently, there is a similar aerial adventure located in Massachusetts at the Catamount Ski Area.

I have attached some literature in this regard. If this was viewed as an "amusement", who would do the inspections; plan review, etc.?

Re: Aerial Adventure Exhibit - Heritage Museum & Gardens

Dear Paul:

Thank you very much for meeting with Ellen Spear and me yesterday to discuss Heritage Museum & Garden's (hereafter "Heritage") proposed new exhibit, Aerial Adventure. As discussed, the purpose of this correspondence is to seek your confirmation that no zoning relief is required for this new museum exhibit under M.G.L. c. 40A, § 3 and under the Sandwich Zoning Bylaw.

As you are aware, Heritage Plantation of Sandwich, Inc., a non-profit educational corporation, owns the approximately 100-acre parcel upon which the museum is situated. The use of the approximately 100 acre property is that of an educational museum. The corporation's Articles of Organization, from 1980, state that its purpose is "creating, maintaining and operating in the Town of Sandwich...and in other towns on Cape Cod a museum or museums...; to educate the public in colonial and early American history and in the life and work of the early settlers and their descendants; to increase the knowledge and appreciation of the public of the American heritage....". As you know, there are numerous exhibits on the property, all of which, collectively, further the educational and museum experience and each of which, individually, are considered components, or exhibits, of the overall museum. Heritage's mission is to "inspire people of all ages to explore, discover and learn together. We do this by sharing excellence in horticulture, garden design, outdoor discovery, and the exhibition of great collections." In furtherance of this mission, Heritage is continually expanding the museum's educational experience with the introduction of new exhibits.

The Aerial Adventure Experience is proposed as a new outdoor discovery exhibit to the overall museum. A detailed explanation of the Aerial Adventure exhibit's educational goals and elements are attached as Exhibit A to this memorandum. As indicated on the attached, and as we stated in our meeting yesterday, critical features that distinguish this proposal from an amusement park ride include the fact that this exhibit is part of an overall museum whose purpose and mission include education of the public and that no one is allowed to participate in the exhibit without first receiving the educational instruction. This instruction is a key component to the exhibit as it provides context and perspective, and will include an overview of the critical elements of the exhibit including tree identification, points of importance on the forest floor which define the unique ecology, and other science learning and environmental stewardship. The learning content of the exhibit has been developed by educators based on current learning modes, and STEM education. The instruction also ties the exhibit into the overall function and goals of the museum and gardens, and is not a standalone presentation.

In terms of Sandwich zoning, the use of the property is not changing with the introduction of this exhibit. For zoning purposes, the property remains that of an educational museum. The Aerial Adventure exhibit, on approximately 5 acres of the 100 acre parcel, is simply a small component of the museum use. As I indicated in our meeting, case law in Massachusetts is clear that the term "educational" is to be expansively interpreted. In the recent case Regis Coll. v. Town of Weston, the Supreme Judicial Court "emphasized that the word 'education,' as employed in Massachusetts statutes and cases, 'is a broad and comprehensive term,'" that is not limited to "traditional or conventional educational regimes."¹ In Harbor Sch., Inc. v. Bd. Of Appeal of Haverhill,² the Appcals Court stated that "education may be particularly directed to either the mental, moral or physical powers and faculties, but in its broadest and best sense it relates to them all." In Fitchburg Housing Authority et. al. v. Board of Appeals of Fitchburg et. al.,³ the Supreme Judicial Court held that the use of a residential facility for formerly institutionalized adults who would be trained for independent living was educational and in so doing noted that "nor is it controlling that the nature of what is taught is not within traditional areas of academic instruction."

In Spectrum Health Systems, Inc., v. Rogers et al.,⁴ the Land Court noted that "a municipality may not isolate a particular proposed use conducted incident to an educational facility, assess its 'educational' value, and exclude the use if it is found lacking in educational purposes." In further making this point that each aspect of the overall educational use should not be separately assessed, the Land Court noted in Spectrum Health Systems "it is possible to educate college students without providing residential facilities for them to live on campus, but college dormitories are unquestionably educational for the purposes of the Dover Amendment."⁵

² 5 Mass. App. Ct. 600, 605 (1977)

³ 380 Mass. 869, 873 (1980)

⁴ Land Court Misc. Case No. 240789 at *7 (May 21, 1999),

⁵ Id

Similarly, in The Bible Speaks v. Board of Appeals of Lenox,⁶ the Appeals Court found that the installation of lights, a softball field, and a snack bar on a school campus "against the broad definition of the term 'education' fashioned by our case law" all constituted educational uses "directly relating to the functioning" of the school. In so determining, the Appeals Court did not look at the uses individually (softball field and snack bar), but instead, looked at them in the context of the overall educational use of the school campus.

Following that same analysis here, application of Massachusetts case law indicates that the Aerial Adventure exhibit should not be viewed individually, but rather as a component of the overall educational experience and use of the subject property as an educational museum. As we indicated at our meeting and as described in greater detail on the attachment document, the Aerial Adventure is intended to further and complement the purpose and the mission of Heritage through exploration, discovery and learning. The emphasis on education is an integral component of the exhibit. While, perhaps, not "educational" within the traditional meaning of the term, when the use is considered in the context of the educational purpose and mission of the museum, it falls squarely within the very broad definition of "education" as accepted by the Courts.

Based upon the foregoing, we ask that you please countersign this letter, as indicated below, confirming your agreement that no use zoning relief is required for Heritage's proposed Aerial Adventure exhibit to the museum. As you are aware, Heritage is hoping to open the exhibit to the public by Memorial Day and, in order to do so, needs to commence construction in early April. As such, we ask that you please respond as quickly as possible.

Thank you very much for your time, input and assistance.

Very truly yours,

Eliza Cox

Aerial Adventure Experience at Heritage Museums & Gardens

Mission Related

Heritage Museums & Gardens' mission is "to inspire people of all ages to explore, discover and learn together. We do this by sharing excellence in horticulture, garden design, outdoor discovery, and the exhibition of great collections." Adopted by the board in 2011.

- Aerial Adventure is an outdoor discovery exhibit for visitors from 8 years old and up.
- The educational content and features are being developed by Heritage educators, utilizing our knowledge of learning modes, STEM education, best museum practices and curriculum developed in Hidden Hollow, the outdoor discovery feature which has similar active elements for children, which opened in 2010
- Heritage has a long history of providing outdoor discovery exhibits including Hidden Hollow, the Dexter Rhododendron walk, 5 miles of interpretive trails, and dozens of educational programs, as well as a long history of youth development work

Outdoor Discovery, Youth Development and Educational Goals

The educational goals of the Aerial Adventure experience are to

- Enable visitors to learn more about Cape Cod's ecology and the environment through participatory activities, teaching that co-existing with the environment is desirable and achievable
- Teach children and families environmental stewardship, community and individual responsibility for the environment through a physical, mental and emotional growth experience.
- Teach participants, enhanced communication, problem-solving, team development and leadership skills

- Provide up-close views and experience of nature in an effort to protect the fragile Cape Cod environment, with a special emphasis on watershed issues
- Provide a drug and alcohol free active educational activity for youth. Heritage is part of the Cape-wide Plain Talk initiative and others who collaborate to provide leadership development
- Raise awareness of unique Cape plant habitats
- Teach about the importance of the internationally recognized work of Charles Dexter, which was done on the location of the Aerial Adventure

Educational Elements

- The entire installation-walking trails and aerial elements work together to form the educational experience
- Walking trails under the elements will contain interpretive signage teaching about Dexter and rhododendron hybridization, the types of trees in the forest and forest succession, plant identification, and family challenges to seek and identify natural elements in the woods
- On the elements, tree identification, points of importance on the forest floor below which define the Cape's unique kettle hole topography and other important science learning will be included for aerial participants to take in and make part of their experience
- Orientation to the space for each participant includes an overview of the garden, the ecology and special features of the forest
- Special group educational programs will be offered that include guided experiences with our horticulture staff, pre-and post visit materials for school groups and environmental workshops for adults
- Heritage's Interpretive Plan for its entire organization has been created as one unit, with each exhibit element adding to a whole interpretive plan with family, adult and youth learning goals that are achieved through different exhibits on the site and which work together as a cohesive whole

Other Bits

- One would not be able to do the aerial adventure elements without receiving the educational talk and materials
- Heritage has led in youth development, part of the education process including working with at-risk kids currently including Riverview School, the ArtWorks Program, Boys & Girls Clubs. This is an ongoing piece of our work.
- Ski slopes with ropes courses and others who have them DO NOT do the educational work that is listed here as an integral and inseparable part of the experience
